THE GAZETTE. THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 2, 1859. THE LAST MAN BROTHERHOOD. We recently listened to the account given us by a friend, of a very interesting organization formed three years ago in this city, with the above title, adopted, doubtless, from the affecting dramatic story, in which the sole survivor at a social meeting that had been held for many years, until all the members save the lone one had dropped into the grave—when he, overcome by emotion, as Sand and other insoluble matter..... he surveyed the vacant chairs and silent room, ate his last sad, solitary meal—fell on the floor and died! The Philadelphia Club in question, consists of thirty-three members, all printers, and we believe it originated Having accepted the Agency for the sale of this among the employees of this office. Twenty article in Washington, Georgetown, and Alexancompanions are enrolled from the Inquirer, three from the North American, one from the Press, one from the News, one from the remainder from other establishments. The Water ... President is Mr. Robert Dyball; the Vice-President, Mr. E. M. Meader; the Secretary, Mr. Geo. W. Richards, and the Treasurer, Mr. Wm. Lowery. No deaths have yet occurred in the fraternity-no known sickness - and the brothers pay ten cents a year each, towards a fund to enable that last living man to enjoy his sorrowful supper. Until that time shall arrive, the Association holds an anniversary Festival on the third Saturday of every February. Yet even after the final departure of all concerned—their shadows, faithful to the protraiture of life-will appear, not as phantoms, but in the verisimilitude of men, as every individual of the company has been photographed by F. De B. Richards, of Chesnut-street, above Fifth, in the highest style of solar art.— Knowing, as we do, most of the originals, we have never seen better likenesses; and the entire group has been superbly framed by Thos. H. Peto. This pictorial display, which can be seen at the Bookstore of T. B. Peterson & Brothers, No. 306 Chesnut street, for a few days, will decorate their place of meeting at every yearly supper, until all are gone. Although it will not exactly immortalise their memories, yet it will probably hand their images down through several ages, and faces will become familiar to after days, that are now chiefly associated with demands for "more copy!" and at times with crowding out themselves from the cargoes just as they arrive from the island, without drying or selection of to the manifest mortification of editors, and as a matter of course to the great loss of innumerable readers. But a truce to badinage. While such fraternities are every way commendable as encouraging social, friendly, and manly intercourse, the "Last Man Brotherhood" awakens emotional and philosophic thoughts that cannot fail to steal over the minds of all who attend the annual festivals. Among the ancient Egyptians, it was customary at feasts to hand round a human skull, and show it to every guest, by way of reminding him of the shortness and uncertainty of life. And it is recorded of a celebrated monarch of antiquity, that he employed a herald daily to say to him-"Remember, O! King, that thou art mortal!" Will not the photographic painting perform emphatically the office of the herald? Undoubtedly it will. Soon there will be an empty seat—then another—and another. As years roll on, these will multiply-until the ranks are so thinned by the insatiate archer, that the fleeting and transitory nature of time and the rapid approach of eternity, will be impressively felt by the small remaining band. Their own departure from sublanary cares, into a better world, will be too forcibly presented to the minds of the living, to be lightly disregarded, and each perhaps will be induced to hope in the calm language of the Emperor Julian average of the importations just as they arrive, and (Pagan though he was)— "May I die a death without pain and be with the immortal discount of the public for sale.

And for a like array of eminent authority, gods!" But Christianity affords a brighter, different parts of the world, we challenge a coma more joyous hope, and through faith, an everlasting fruition. And who are likely to cherish such consoling sentiments, equally of awe and resignation, with more soul-inspiring views, than printers? Intelligent themselves, they distil through their fingers, the intellect, the philosophy, the science, the learning, the logic, and the rhetoric of many gifted spirits—and the seed is not sown on barren soil. It grows, it germinates, it fructifies, and from the harvest, many an eminent man has been gathered into the service of the nation-an honor to himself and a credit to his constituents.-But fast speeds the old mower with his scythe! The grave has received a majority of our friends. There are more vacant chairs .-The photographic group tells in silent language of eloquence and power the story of those who have gone before, and foretells the destiny of the three, the two, the one-soon to follow. The many sayings, doings, and opinions of the lost to earth are fondly recalled. When the last brother, gray-headed, trembling, and tottering with age, sits down

TO GIRLS. A newspaper witer says, "There are two kinds of girls; one appears the best abroadthe girls that are good for parties, rides, visits, balls &c., and whose chief delight is in such The other is the kind that appears things.' best at home—the girls that are useful and cheerful in the dining-room, the sick room, and all the precincts of home. They differ widely in character. One is often a torment at home; the other is a blessing. One is a moth consuming everything about her; the other is a sunbeam, inspiring life and gladness all along her pathway."

..22.90 100 SOMBRERO GUANO.

N calling the attention of the public to this valuable and recently discovered deposit of this fertilizing article, we will merely state, that like all other phosphatic GUANOS, its most valuable constituent is phosphoric acid, or bene phosphate of lime; and that its mercantile value, as compared with other GUANOS of its kind, may be easily determined by the amount of phosphoric acid or bone phosphate of lime it contains. In order, therefore, to give the public a thorough knowledge of what SOMBRERO GUANO does contain, we beg to refer to the following list of eminent chemists in different parts of the world, who have analyzed different cargoes, from average samples taken by specimens for analyzation. Each analysis will be exhibited, if required, under the original signature Of phosphoric acid, estimated as equivalent to phosphate of lime, it is found to contain-By Prof. Morfit, of New York, Piggot, Baltimore, Hayes, Boston, of 1st sample, 89.20 Reese, Baltimore, 72.04 Chilton, New York, 1st 2d Piggot, Baltimore
